Troubled horses find a voice

Tell the herd - Monty Roberts, 'The Real Life Horse Whisperer' and arguably the world's greatest horse trainer is coming to the UK as part of his 'Living Legend' tour.

Roberts will work with some of the neighbourhood's most troubled equines to overcome their fears using a language they're guaranteed to understand – their own. Whether it's putting their first saddle, bridle and rider on, or loading them into a horsebox; it's all achieved with communication, compassion and care. his non-violent training techniques which have revolutionised the horse world; Roberts' methods allow him to accomplish in minutes what can take weeks or prove impossible to even the most experienced horse people.

“For centuries, humans have said to horses ‘you do what I tell you or I’ll hurt you,’ I’m saying that no one has the right to say, ‘you must’ to an animal or another human” said Mr Roberts.

The son of a horseman Roberts found he had a gift for understanding horses at an early age. Seeing the pain and suffering so many were subjected to, in efforts to train and ‘break’ them, he vowed to find a better way. It was whilst tracking wild mustangs in Nevada as a boy that he observed a non-verbal communication between the horses; a silent language he would later call ‘Equus’.

Roberts comes to Britain regularly to ensure HM the Queen's racehorses get off to a good start and has helped horses worldwide as documented in his best-selling book ‘The Man Who Listen to Horses’. However, this was just the starting point of his work as since he has found how horses can heal and inspire and his taken his work to help the lives of veterans with Post Traumatic Stress to Corporations wishing to improve communication.

Audiences will be treated to a unique demonstration of this language as Roberts tours the country helping owners and horses to face their fears and learn to trust each other. They'll leave with knowledge that will help them for many years to come. It's guaranteed to be an inspirational evening for horse lovers and equine novices alike.

He'll be accompanied by his right-hand woman, Kelly Marks who with impressive credentials in her own right has worked alongside Monty for 25 years. She says, ‘what I love about this journey is that we keep on learning, and to have the opportunity to change not just horses' lives but people's too is an enormous privilege’.

Roberts says “My greatest accomplishment was learning to be gentle. Without that, I would have accomplished nothing,”. His life's ambition is simple – “to leave the world a better place than I found it, for horses, and for people too”.
